ROADS MEETING

If Lexington County is to get anywhere next year with a road building plan which will afford anything like satisfaction there will have to be a greater unanimity than was manifested at the meeting Monday. Some good ideas were advanced, but there was, particularly among the delegation members, a divergence of opinion which does not bode well for even a start at a workable program.

Col. Wingard was right when he said that we might as well trim our sails to dovetail whatever plan we adopted into a statewide system, because there is some probability that the coming legislature will adopt some measure providing for such a system.

It was a pity that such a small crowd was in attendance and that Senator Ridgell did not have an opportunity to set out the program which he had outlined, because it ought to at least furnish a good working basis from which the delegation could start to frame a law which would give us better results.

It would have been a noteworthy achievement if in more than twice the time allotted, the success of the Baptist drive for seventy-five million dollars had achieved success. That the subscription was practically raised in one day was more than remarkable.

It is hardly short of marvelous. It bespeaks a church loyalty and a religious fervor that means more than the raising of any definite sum of money. It shows an ability to pull together and stick together and a capacity to enthuse which denotes that the church is still enjoying its youth and the accompanying virility. Great things will doubtless be accomplished from the fruits of this successful canvass for funds.

The colored people of Lexington are preparing to buy a piece of ground and build a new school house. They had a rally at Bethel A. M. E. church on Nov. 27. After an able sermon by Rev. Porter, pastor of St. Paul Baptist church, they succeeded in raising the sum of $149.83. They are thanking the good people of Lexington, both white and colored, for their liberal contribution for the cause of education.
